Moonstone

Moonstone gemstone is one of the finest crystals from the feldspar group containing shining rays on its surface. It is transparent to a translucent gemstone that comes in various shades like orange, bluish, pinkish, white, and more. It comprises the thin layers of the Orthoclase and Albite potassium feldspar, which create light interference in this material.

It carries the white shimmering similar to moonshine, called adularescence, which is known for awakening the user's feminine and inner awareness. The best quality of Moonstone comes from Myanmar, Sri Lanka, and India.

Opal Ring

Opal Ring considers one of the topmost gemstones for ceremonial or healing purposes. Moreover, it is a popular gemstone among the young generation because of its color variants.

Ethiopia and Australia are the primary producers of the Opal gemstones and provide throughout the world to create the best pieces of gemstone jewelry.

It is translucent to a transparent gemstone that ranges in various colors white, black, white, orange, and many more. In addition, the crystal is worn by October-born persons as their traditional birthstone,
